

Capri Product Disclaimer

*Capri is a limestone product which is a sedimentary rock. This means each paver and/or bullnose has a different composition. At times the product will have an adverse reaction to sodium and other environmental factors. It is impossible to know which pieces will have an issue, but it is important to understand that all, some or none of the product you receive could have a negative reaction once installed. If you choose to purchase any of the Capri product selections StoneHardscapes will not be liable for issues that arise once the material is installed. To assist in avoiding this issue we recommend that a fine silica sand or mason sand is used when sand setting this particular stone, and if the product is being installed on a concrete slab we would recommend thin-setting the material. We also highly recommend sealing the stone with a natural stone penetrating sealer due to the porosity of the stone. These recommendations do not guarantee that an adverse reaction will not occur. ****

By signing below I understand that I am excepting full liability for any issues that arise once the product is installed.
